Not long after our adopted Dominoe passed over the Rainbow Bridge, we began searching for another orphan to be Rocky's "Sissy". We visited the Vegas shelters but could not find a suitable match - either

Rocky was put off by a too young candidate or the potential candidate was intimidated by his size. I began an internet search and found Mutt Matchers and Friends - a black Lab mix misnamed Princess was available for people adoption duty - we visited, Princess and Rocky tolerated each other and our family had a new member. Princess settled in nicely, but within a year, Rocky's age caught up with him - and it would be our choice to find Princess a new Brudder. We contacted MM&F - no Labs but a fine looking, gentle, special needs mix was available - after a bag of hotdog bits, Jackson was okay with Sarah & I - he cared less about Princess - and we added the Jacko to our list of 6 rescue dogs (no, I mean 2 at a time) - he is slowly overcoming his shyness around adults, but the poor guy can't tolerate kids - he's not mean, just stays as far away as possible. While Princess owns the living room sofa and its window access,

Jack has converted our laundry room into his mancave - all of our friends at MM&F - Sandy, Judy, Andraya - to name a few- have become wonderful to work with and we will most definitely seek their assistance should another Mutt need to be Matched with Friends.
